CAMERAWAR, an exciting and provocative new form of cinema, is the work of internationally renowned underground film maker and Utica native, Lech Kowalski. Utica and the Café Domenico are at the center of this ambitious experimental work that is boldly trying to make sense of the array of complex issues that confront us at the beginning of the new century.

CAMERAWAR is being watched by thousands of viewers in over 100 countries. In the coming weeks, as the action in the film moves increasingly to Utica, we hope that more Uticans will begin to watch it regularly and join in the conversation about it both online and at the Café.
